

Golf Legend Arnold Palmer Named Honorary Chairman of the 2010 Mylan Classic Presented by CONSOL Energy

PITTSBURGH, April 12, 2010 /PRNewswire via COMTEX News Network/ -- Golf legend Arnold Palmer will serve as Honorary Chairman for this summer's inaugural Mylan Classic presented by CONSOL Energy, a PGA TOUR Nationwide Tour event. The 2010 Mylan Classic, sponsored by Mylan Inc. (Nasdaq: MYL), will be played Sept. 2-5 at Southpointe Golf Club in the Pittsburgh suburb of Canonsburg, preceded by a pro-am event on Sept. 1. All four rounds will be televised on Golf Channel in the U.S., with the event reaching 123 countries overseas.

Mylan Chairman and CEO Robert J. Coury said: "We feel truly privileged that Arnold Palmer will be participating in the Mylan Classic in this very special way. While his golf career has certainly been nothing short of legendary, his reputation for helping to raise funds for numerous charitable organizations is just as impressive. He is the perfect Honorary Chairman for an event that combines the celebration of golf with the desire to give back to local communities and their charities."

"I gladly accepted this offer when approached," said Palmer. "I have the utmost respect and appreciation for the Nationwide Tour and the significant impact it has on the PGA TOUR. Now in its 21st year, the Tour has done much to advance the level of competition in professional golf and prepare many of the sport's most talented young players for life on the PGA TOUR. I congratulate Mylan and key supporting sponsors CONSOL Energy and Dick's Sporting Goods for bringing this wonderful event to the golf fans of western Pennsylvania."

Nearly all of the 100-plus PGA TOUR tournaments - including the Mylan Classic - are structured as non-profit organizations that donate 100% of event net proceeds to local charities.
