

Mylan Updates Status on Topiramate Summary Judgment Motion

PITTSBURGH, July 19 /PRNewswire-FirstCall/ -- Mylan Laboratories Inc. (NYSE: MYL) today reported that the U.S. District Court for the District of New Jersey issued an opinion today which concluded that the relevant patent "may be properly construed to expressly claim topiramate". The final pretrial conference in this litigation is scheduled for September 19, with trial to be scheduled thereafter. At trial, Mylan will present its claims that the patent is invalid based on obviousness and is unenforceable due to Ortho-McNeil's inequitable conduct. Mylan will also continue to advocate its non-infringement defense. In April, 2005, the District Court judge granted Mylan's motion to dismiss Ortho's claims of willful infringement.

Forward-Looking Statements

This press release includes statements that constitute "forward-looking statements," including with regard to the Company's pending litigation. These statements are made pursuant to the safe harbor provisions of the Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995.
