PITTSBURGH, April 13 /PRNewswire-FirstCall/ -- Mylan Inc. (Nasdaq: MYL) today announced the appointment of former Merrill Lynch investment banker Andrew G. Cuneo as vice president of Global Business Development. Cuneo is responsible for coordinating Mylan's global business development and strategic efforts in close alignment with the company's executive leadership team.

Mylan's Vice Chairman and CEO Robert J. Coury said: "Drew brings a wealth of experience in the pharmaceutical, biotechnology and health care sectors. His familiarity with our industry - and in particular with Mylan given his and Merrill Lynch's active role with the company during the past five years - makes him ideally suited to support the company's continued growth."

Most recently he served as a director in its Global Healthcare Investment Banking group. He earned a Bachelor of Arts in economics and psychology from Vanderbilt University.

"Mylan has emerged as one of the industry's best run and most progressive pharmaceutical franchises," said Cuneo. "I'm excited to be able to continue participating and to further contribute to the development and execution of its plans for profitable commercial expansion."
